FROM THE PASTOR

The other day I read an article by someone who was upset that the “rules” of Lent are as lenient as they are these days. The author felt like the Church needed to go back to the “good old days” of Lenten observance and impose more serious disciplines and penances on people: more obligatory fasting and more restrictions on what and when people can and can’t eat.

It’s an interesting thought. Certainly, the disciplines of the past were much stricter—though they did vary across time and place. In the medieval era, all days of Lent were days of fast. You got one meal, and no meat, eggs, or dairy were permitted at all. (Thus, you had ‘Fat Tuesday’ to use up all the milk, butter, and eggs.) Over time, concessions got made in different areas for different groups that permitted eggs/dairy, additional snacks, and even the occasional use of meat. In the USA, the most recent rules required fasting (one meal and two snacks) every day of Lent except Sundays and only permitted meat at the main meal, except on Fridays, Ash Wednesday, and Holy Saturday when no meat was permitted at all.

There is a question of how much those rules were actually observed. There were various exceptions granted to those rules for any number of reasons, and I suppose one could easily be creative enough to find a way to feel exempt. Even in 1909, the Catholic Encyclopedia observed that “the obligation of fasting is rarely observed in its integrity nowadays.” It seems likely that they would be even less observed by 1969, which is about when the regulations changed to what we have today. If you’re going to have restrictions that nobody follows anyway, maybe it’s time to rethink the restrictions.

But I think there an additional consideration. It’s much more virtuous to do something good out of a loving desire to do it than merely out of obligation. By reducing the obligations of Lent, the bishops have given us the freedom to choose penitential practices that we find better suited to our own circumstances and dispositions. We can act out of love of God and a desire for spiritual growth instead of because we’re forced to do something.

If the penances of the “good old days” work for you, that’s great. But if all those restrictions would do is make you grumble about how long it is till Easter, then maybe it’s good that you can try something else. Yes, there is a risk that some (or most) will take a path of minimalism and not go above and beyond the basic obligations, but those would probably have been the same people who would have looked for every loophole and found ways to exempt themselves in the old system anyway.

As we’ve now reached the midpoint of Lent, I hope whatever you’ve chosen to do in the way of prayer, fasting, and works of mercy is bearing fruit and helping you grow in holiness and virtue.

Food Pantry Update

As we prepare for the Lenten Season, many are helping to fill our pantry shelves. Over the last month, the following groups have provided additional support to our pantry.

Our Holy Cross school children collected personal supplies (shampoo, soap, toothbrushes...you get the idea) during Catholic Schools Week. A Big Thank You to our school children.

St. Francis ran a food and sock drive and our Neighbors in Need were very grateful. St. Anastasia runs a monthly collection and we are now the recipient of their goodies. Scenic Hills Elementary school provided a truckload of food to our pantry. Sts. Peter and Paul (West Chester) Confirmation students made kiddie bags (for folks who bring their children for their food pick-ups). The message of our pantry is reaching further out and we are very grateful.

Our Knights of Columbus participated in the "Souper Bowl of Caring" and provided many needed supplies. What a Great Community activity and Thanks to All who participated in this initiative.

If you know anyone in need of food in Delco, please let them know that we are open Wednesdays from 3:30 to 5:30. We do not open until all our school is closed.

We are always in need of cereal, oatmeal, mac & cheese, pasta and pasta sauce, peanut butter, rice and beans if you are able to help. (No glass please).

God Bless All of You for your prayers and generosity.
Your Friends from the SVDP Holy Cross Food Pantry
